At Provas, individuality is not just a business model, but also a part of the corporate culture.

In the world of medical precision, where Provas AG operates as a recognized specialist in vascular prostheses, space is more than just a physical place – it's a symbol of innovation and care. Every product that leaves the house bears the signature of the team behind its development. With business activities spanning across Switzerland and maintaining direct contact with hospitals, it's crucial that the work environment reflects the high standards of the company.

Challenge

The Challenges of a Growing Vision

The search for new business premises began out of the need to create more space for storage and employees.

A new building offered the opportunity to design from the ground up – a task that required both competence and creativity.

Solution

From Idea to Reality

Provas AG desired an environment that is not only functional but also homely – a place that reflects the company's family-like culture. Particularly important were the storage furniture for prostheses, which need to be stored under specific conditions, and areas that invite communal gathering.

The qualified workplace experts at Schäfer Shop were a decisive partner from the start. Convinced by personal experience, Ms. Waibel turned to the company, which impressed with its expertise in planning and setup.

The process was characterized by close collaboration, where the Provas AG team brought in their ideas and the workplace experts at Schäfer Shop brought them to life.
